Greetings from the President

“The Law of Countability – Teammates Must Be Able to Count on Each Other When It Counts” – Dr. John C. Maxwell

According to Dr. John C. Maxwell, America’s expert on leadership, a picture of a winning team has the following five elements:

1. Have great leaders;
2. Pick good people;
3. Play to win;
4. Make other team members more successful; and
5. Keep improving.

He also identified five things that winning team members need to know:

1. What is expected from each one;
2. That each one will have an opportunity to perform;
3. How each one is getting along;
4. That guidance will be given where each one needs it; and
5. That each one will be rewarded according to his contribution.

As your President, I am responsible for leading our team, the VCCAA. The foundation of the VCCAA is its membership. I need to count on each and every member when its counts. I am extending kudos to several members who had taken charge of our recent events and activities. I can count on them.

Dr. George Yu, with the Historical Society, led a well-organized unveiling ceremony of the San Buenaventura China Alley Memorial Mural on Figueroa Plaza in downtown Ventura on Sat., Aug. 28. This vital landmark acknowledges the legacy of the Chinese pioneers in Ventura County.

Dr. Hillary Ling exceeded our fundraising goal and raised about $8,000 in promotional advertising. We appreciate the following generous Gold Sponsors: Camarillo Dental Building, Chester’s Asia Chinese Restaurant, DCH Lexus of Oxnard, and Al Lowe Construction, Inc.

Lesley Ling with Dr. Ling’s help developed a wonderful Directory with the Year of the Rooster as its theme on the fast track. She provided a fine layout and layout of advertisements in the Directory.

Wei-Li Young organized a great program for the Mid-Autumn Festival on Sat., Oct. 2. Yu-Ling Lu coordinated dances with the Chinese Classical & Folk Dance Troupe. Lee-May Little coordinated songs and stories for the Chinese Language School.

LaRaine Kang with Edna Tanita (daughter-mother team) successfully coordinated the program for the Halloween Party on Sat., Oct. 30. The children enjoyed the activities. Leslie Jue did his usual stellar job in cooking the delicious hamburgers and hot dogs.

A special kudo goes to Lloyd Ho for his hard work as our newsletter editor. He has always produced a high quality newsletter for the VCCAA that reflects its membership.

Mid-Autumn Festival - 中秋聚會

The VCCAA celebrated the Mid-Autumn Festival (Moon Cake Festival), the third major festival of the Chinese calendar on Oct. 2nd. This holiday is traditionally celebrated on the 15th day of the eighth month of the lunar calendar. This year's Moon Cake Festival fell on Sept. 28. The festival is typically celebrated with colorful lantern processions on the night of the festival. The other specialty of the festival is the moon cake itself. This festival is also a time for family and friends to gather together to celebrate the abundance of autumn. The round shape of a moon cake to Chinese means family reunion.

The turnout for this year's celebration was a success. Over 200 members, families and friends participated in the celebration.

Thanks to strong support by Juliet Sun for doing a wonderful job as MC, Lee-May Little, Lakeview Garden Chinese Restaurant (4703 Lakeview Canyon Rd., Westlake Village, (805) 557-0198), TW Bakery (5833 Temple City Blvd., Temple City, (626) 286-7789), Frances Connor for the beautiful color program for the event, Youth Group and all the people who helped setup tables and chairs, took care of the food tables, and cleanup. This was the first time in a long time we did not run out of food.

As part of the festival we also provided many varieties of moon cakes and had enough for everyone to taste many of the flavors. These cakes were rich, round pastries filled with a mixture of sweet red bean paste, lotus nut paste, or salted egg yolk.

Entertainment for the celebration was very well organized with the theme matched to some of the traditional folklore of the festival. K-2 students from the Chinese Language School performed a story of the “Jade Rabbit.” K-1 and K-2 students recited an exemplary rabbit poem. Pin Yin II, III and IV performed the song “Jasmine Flower.” The dance troupes under direction of Madam Yu-Ling Lu performed a Handkerchief dance, Ribbon dance and Mountain dance. All the teachers did a fantastic job in putting together these programs in three short weeks.

Chinese Language School - 中文學校

Our Chinese School classes started September 10. This year we have a total of 66 students registered. We are surprised to see so many new young learners in our Kindergarten 1 and 2 classes. They bring a lot of joy and a fearless spirit to the study of language, and give us great hope for the future of the school.

Experts say that learning language is definitely easier and more successful when the students are younger. Congratulations to the parents on having the foresight to begin their children's language education so early. We are also happy to have so many returning students back.

I was so proud of our students' performance at the Mid-Autumn Festival. In the short period of three weeks we produced two beautiful programs. We want to especially thank our K-1 and K-2 teachers, Ms. Liou and Ms. Fong, the pianist, Marlina Trevor, the coordinator, Irene Sy, and all the parents who volunteered to help.

We also want to congratulate our teacher Dolly Lee on being recognized by the Southern California Council of Chinese Schools for five years of outstanding and valuable service to Chinese Language education. We are proud of her and know that she will continue her good work.

VCCA Historical Society

From the 1870s to the 1920s, an area close to the San Buenaventura Mission along Figueroa Street was known as China Alley. At its peak, China Alley had about 200 ethnic Chinese inhabitants. Among them were merchants, laborers, cooks, servants and laundrymen. The famous Chinese Fire Company put out fires both in China Alley and the City of Ventura. By the early 20th century, the population in China Alley had declined as a result of unfair immigration laws and racial discrimination. The City of Ventura decided to modernize this block and by the 1920s all of the original buildings were removed.

In early 2001, the Ventura City Council approved a proposal from Ms. Donna DePaola, then deputy mayor, for a memorial to recognize China Alley. The task was passed on to the Historic Preservation Committee (HPC), chaired by Ms. Tracy Long. Our Historical Society approached the HPC with an offer to help with the design of the memorial. In June, 2001 our historian, Ms. Linda Bentz and Mr. Richard Senate, the City's historian, conducted a walking tour of the China Alley site for members of the HPC. A site along the Figueroa Street was chosen by the HPC and a mural design was submitted to the City Council for review. In May, 2002 the City Council voted unanimously to approve public funding for a mural to honor China Alley. Our Historical Society was asked to raise funds from the private sector for construction of the memorial as well.

A design competition was organized by the Historical Society and awarded to Mr. Pang Qi and his wife, Ms. Guo Song Yun. Mr. and Mrs. Pang are renowned Chinese artists who immigrated to Southern California in 2001. They worked continuously from mid-July until the end of August to complete this project. Their workdays were generally 10-12 hours with no weekend break. This was truly a labor of love for them.

The unveiling ceremony of the China Alley Memorial on August 28 was a smashing success. Auspicious lion dancers from the Camarillo Lion Dance Troupe and Kung Fu Club started the festivities with the celebration of the mural. The youthful VCCAA Chinese Classical and Folk Dance Troupe then performed three dances at the venue. Following the unveiling ceremony we had a very successful reception at the Ventura County Museum of History and Art (VCMHA). The attendance was estimated to be over 250 people. The event was attended by Brian Brennan, the mayor of the City of Ventura, city council members Neal Andrews, Kristy Weir, Bill Fulton, Jim Monahan and Donna DePaola, past deputy mayor. Also in attendance were Tim Schiffer, director of the VCMHA and Charles Johnson, its librarian. Mr. Schiffer kindly offered the courtyard in the Museum for our reception. We are thankful to all the volunteers from the VCCAHS, VCCAA as well as the Conejo Chinese Cultural Association. Caroline Tsaw and Irene Sy were the organizers of the unveiling ceremony and reception. S.K. Leong and Dolly Cheng were the masters of ceremonies. Their talents have made this celebration a memorable event.

We are especially pleased that this memorial is a joint effort of the City of Ventura and the Ventura County Chinese American Historical Society. The artists have done research on the Internet and failed to find a comparable memorial to the early Chinese settlers anywhere in the United States that is a result of joint public and private funding. If it is indeed the case, it will be of significance to the City of Ventura.

Please visit the China Alley Memorial with your family and friends to see this beautiful mural dedicated to the legacy of those early Chinese pioneers who made significant contributions to the budding agricultural industry in this region. Their hard work has paved the way for the thousands who follow in their footsteps.

Youth Group

We had a successful bowling party at Harley's Bowl in Camarillo on Aug. 14, 6 to 8 PM. There were around 15 people who participated in this event. Bowlers ages ranged from 7 to 15. We had lots of fun bowling.

When everyone was finished bowling, we all headed to the arcade to have some more fun. Everyone had a very good time before the school year started and we plan to hold one next year as well.

Thanks to Mrs. Lee-May Little who brought the Subway sandwiches and refreshment for us. We also want to thank Mr. Jeffrey Fegar, who helped make the activity fun and memorable.

Any youth who would like to join us, please give Richard Hai a call at (805) 389-1075 to put your name on the phone calling list to join us for upcoming youth events.

A Look at Calligraphy

Calligraphy, the noblest of the visual arts, was the most direct expression of that prodigious literacy that marked the elite of China. It was venerated even by the illiterate masses, and its values changed less over 2,000 years than those of any other art. Those who controlled the administration of the Chinese empire, and who therefore wielded the greatest influence over its evolution, cultivated the art of handwriting as an active element in the education of the scholar-gentry class. They ascribed to calligraphy the profoundest spiritual values and distinguished it completely from the technical labor of professional artisans. Yet no art has ever depended more upon technical expertise, acquired through the most arduous and prolonged effort.

Nature of Chinese Writing

To the modern eye the patterns emerging from calligraphic forms seem a remarkable precursor of abstract expressionism. Yet to the Chinese, calligraphy is a most potent flux of concrete imagery. It requires painstaking study of the calligraphy of others through endless copying; at the same time it emphasizes more than any other art the essential uniqueness of the individual's achievement.

The nature of calligraphy depends upon two principal factors, the script and the writing implement. In the Chinese language each word is written as a single, discrete symbol, or character. Characters can be written in several different scripts, which represent different stages in the evolution of the written language that took place over centuries. Instead of being discarded, these scripts were concurrently maintained by later calligraphers. This practice was a manifestation of the intensive study of the past that characterized most aspects of Chinese civilization. It molded both the content and nature of the art of calligraphy, which distilled the essence of an intense humanism. Venerating to a unique degree the written word as the preserver of their collective past, the Chinese thus have venerated handwriting as the most direct communication with the shared values of people in that past.

The materials of calligraphy are considered essential to proper performance. Contemporary sources record the invention of paper in China around AD 105. China's invention and use of paper, preceding its discovery in the West by 11 centuries. Although calligraphy was often written on silk, it's most distinctive qualities emerged out of the reactions between the brush, ink, and paper. The finely pointed brush was usually made from goat or wolf hair. To be perfectly controlled, the brush had to be held essentially upright, so that its tip remained centered over the writing surface. The deep black ink used was mixed when required by rubbing on an ink stone a few drops of water and an ink stick made from pine soot and protein glue. The best paper was made from mulberry bark and imparted a deep glow to the readily absorbed ink. The Chinese honored each of these items as the product of a highly refined craft, and a precise sense of ritual accompanied their use.

Evolution of Chinese Writing

The earliest Chinese writing that can be read today dates from around the 13th century BC. Still earlier forms are as yet not deciphered. Two distinct forms are known from the earliest decipherable stage. A vividly pictographic script appears on the magnificent bronze vessels of the Shang period (c.1600-1027 BC), having been engraved into the molds as dedicatory inscriptions. More complex texts in a much more abstract script were engraved by Shang diviners on ox scapulae and turtle plastrons, known as oracle bones.

The Qin (Ch'in; 221-206 BC), the first dynasty to unify China under centralized rule, produced a standardized script that came into use throughout the country. Later called small seal script (xiaojuan), it had evolved from an increasingly square regularization of the large seal script (dajuan) of the Zhou (Chou) dynasty (c.1027-256 BC), in which the Confucian classics were originally written.

Bureaucratic requirements during the Han period (202 BC - AD 220) exerted strong pressure for simplification and standardization. The result was a new category of script called simply clerical script, or lishu. The archaic seal script was often retained for formal titles and was also adapted to the small seals that have been used as signatures from the Han to the present. These small red stamps, often present on documents, letters, books, and paintings, may signify either authorship or ownership.

By the 4th century AD, the formal regular script (kaishu, which is basically the printed script of today, and various abbreviated cursive scripts had evolved. Wang Xizhi (Wang Hsi-chih), the leading calligrapher of the 4th century, was revered by later generations. The Tang (T'ang) dynasty (618-906) was the classic age of regular script; its formality was ideally suited to the aristocratic splendor of that period. The running script (xingshu) had many of its greatest practitioners in the Song (Sung) dynasty (960-1279), when calligraphers and other artists explored new modes of self-expression with great originality. Much of the finest cursive script (caoshu) was written in the Ming dynasty (1368-1644), when great attention was focused on the formal properties of art. In the later Qing (Ch'ing) dynasty (1644-1911) the ancient seal script was revived by calligraphers such as I Bingshou (I Ping-shou, 1754-1815). In the 20th century, when Shang oracle bones were recovered after 3,000 years of obscurity, their archaic script was also translated into a brush-written form
